A Young Man of the Right Sort. Mr. Andrew Norrell, son of Mr. S. B. Norrell, of Abbeville, is an excellent harness-maker, although only sixteen years old. He can cut a complete set of names and make every piece. His energy and application to business are worthy of all imitation, and it would be well for the country and greatly to their own credit if more of our young men would learn trades, and thus become useful citizens, rather than idle drones.

Badly Hurt.

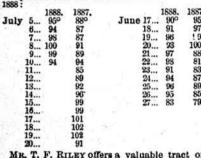

While Mr. James S. Gibert's youngest son, aged about seven years, was riding last Thursday afternoon, the horse ran against a wire fence, badly cutting both the horse and the rider.

Shocked by Lightning. Mrs. D. R. Penney, living near Warrenton, was severely shocked by lightning one day ast week. The lightning struck a large oak MESSES. PERRIN & COTHRAN have, at the request of the County Commissioners, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus against the Carolina, Knoxville and Western Railroad Carolina, Knoxville and Western Railroad Company to require the Railroad Company to require the Railroad Company to repair the crossings and to open a new road wherever the grading of the railroad has obstructed or interfered with the highways in the townships of Ninety-Six, Greenwood and Cokesbury. Mr. Perrin has just returned from Greenville, where he had an interview with Capt. J. B. Humbert, the president of the company and one of the attorneys, and reached an agreement which, it is thought, will result in the speedy removal of all the difficulties and inconveniences to travel along the highways. MR. T. F. RILEY offers a valuable tract of land for sale near the town of Greenwood. The healthfulness of the location, the fertility of the soil, the low price asked for the land, together with proximity to a most excellent market, with unsurpassed railroad facilities, make this a rare chance for investment in real estate. Those who fail to heed this notice will miss a bargain and a good home. Call on or correspond with Mr. Thos. F. Riley, Greenwood, S. C.

THE weather during the last week has been excessively hot, and we note the hottest tem perature at differens places as follows:

There was no scarcity of meat, there being eleven carcasses barbequed besides chickens eleven carcasses barbequed besides chickens and other good things furnished by the ladles of the neighborhood. MAJ. J. L. WHITE, as gallant a confederate soldier as ever fought for a lost cause, withdraws from the race for the Legislature. He was brought out by the farmers and the chances are that he would have been elected; if he had continued in the race. Owing to misfortune he prefers a lucrative office.

VERY little is now being said about either the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad, or the Cumberland Gap road. It is presumed however, that the Cumberland Gap is stopped at a creek this side of Aiken, and that the Georgia, Carolina and Nothern rests on the last bank of the Catawba.

SEVERAL new candidates are announced. Capt. J. W. Perrin, for Treasurer; Capt. J. T. Boykin, for County Commissioner; Capt. John M. Cochran, for Clerk; Dr. O. P. Hawthorn for the Legislature. J. F. Livingston.

MR. T. F. RILEY, and Mr. Greene, of Green wood, were in town yesterday, perfecting and completing the sale and purchase of a lot for the new bank building at Greenwood. The lot was bought from Mr. Riley at $650.

Report to the Effect that a Dving Negro Confessed to Have Committed Murder Sixteen Years Ago. The recently reported confession of Andy ohnson brings to mind the circumstances related below : PROBABLE DEATH.—Very serious apprehensions are entertained of the safety of Mr. M. L. Edwards, who is reported to have been drowned in Long Cane, near Cannon's Bridge, on night before last. He is said to have been heard by some blacks calling for help during the night. Search has been instituted but the

the night. Search has been instituted but the body has not yet been found.—Press and Banner, March 27, 1872.

The above paragraph is all that was published in reference to the death of Mr. Edwards. At the time suspicion rested on two colored men, Andy Johnson and Jack Morris. He left Abbeville on the afternoon of March 25, 1872, on borseback, somewhat under the influence of liquor, going in the direction of home, but from Andy Johnson's his horse was tracked towards Cannon's bridge, across the intervening fields and swamps, laying down fences, and going in the opposite direction from his home. The mule tracks were with those of the horse's tracks to the edge of Long Cane creek. The horse went in the swollen waters, swam down the stream for perhaps a hundred yards, where it came out on the bank of the same side of the stream, where it was found next day.

The neighbors gathered in numbers and "dragged" the creek time and sgain for miles. No trace of him was found, except Mr. Edwards' hat and cravat. He was last seen with Andy Johnson and Jack Morris—and Andy Johnson's wife, since his death last week—has admitted that Mr. Edwards called at their house after dark of the same day that he left the village.

A company of white neighbors went to the house after dark of the same day that helest the village.

A company of white neighbors went to the house of Andy Johnson, arrested him, and made arrangements to swing him to the limb of a tree, when a brother of the deceased in-terposed objection, because of the lack of pos-of a tree, when a broker of the dack of positive proof of his guilt.

Jack Morris, several years ago, together with others, was charged with stealing cotton from Mr. John A. Devlin. After his arrest he escaped from the constables and he has not been heard from since that time.

Andy Johnson died about two weeks ago on the place of Mr. R. C. Wilson, some three miles South of Abbeville, and it is currently reported that he confessed that he and Jack Morris killed Mr. Edwards; that they first thought of burying him under the house, but abandoned the idea. Before telling where he was burled, he became speechless, and died without concluding his confession.

Morris killed at the house, but abandoned the idea. Before telling where he was burled, he became speechless, and died without concluding his confession.

There are all sorts of rumors in reference to this matter. Nearly every one has talked over the matter, and while there is some division of sentiment, we are confident that a large majority who have spoken of the matter are of opinion that the negroes killed Mr. Edwards for the money which they supposed he had about his person. Mr. Edwards had spoken of having three hundred dollars in money, but he had left it all in Abbeville, except about eighty cents, having in pocket only forty cents as a reward to cach of his murderers for their trouble and their crime.

Whatever view may be taken as to the manner by which Mr. Edwards came to his death it is still shrouded in mystery.

If he was drowned it is most remarkable that no trace of his body, for of his clothing, except his hat and his cravat, has been found. Long Cane is a small stream, every foot of the width could be examined.

If he was murdered, it was one of the most successfully concealed murders that was ever committed in Abbeville County.

The theory of those who believe he was murdered is somewhat thus: The negroes supposed Mr. Edwards had a large sum of money on his person; that Andy Johnson and Jack Morris sought to possess themselves of it; that after the murder they led his horse to the swollen stream, and drove the animal into the water, throwing Mr. Edwards's hat and cravat in the creek as a blind or misleader.
